Temple Christian School Acceptable Use Policy

Temple Christian School offers a comprehensive one-to-one technology initiative for students. The purpose of laptops, iPads, computers, use of the internet, and software is to facilitate communication in support of education and research that is consistent with educational objectives and the mission for TCS. Users may have access to internal and external resources in order to retrieve and process information designed to facilitate learning and enhance educational information exchange.

TCS currently provides each student with a computing device and all necessary software applications to facilitate the one-to-one program. TCS assumes responsibility for the management and maintenance of hardware and software that allow students access to information technologies for educational purposes. Hardware includes, but is not limited to, laptops, iPads, computers, school network and school Internet. Software includes, but is not limited to, computer programs approved by TCS. Web-based programs are utilized, but not limited to textbooks, student information systems, and other sites as designated by teachers and administration. Networks include all voice, video, and data systems, including the school's internal network and the Internet.

TCS provides Internet content filtering while students are connected to the campus network. Further content filtering is also provided on individual student laptops both on-campus and off. Reasonable efforts are made to restrict access to inappropriate sites and content. TCS Information Technology and Administrative staff may randomly sample internet and network usage and monitor device policy compliance to ensure a secure and safe online environment.
